Editorial Notes

Alhamdulillah. We are delighted to publish the 6th issue (pending issues from 2015 to 2017) of Manarat International University Studies (MIUS). Due to some unavoidable circumstances, the publication was delayed. Following a thorough evaluation, including one-to-one communication with authors and similarity checks via Turnitin, seven articles from the 6th were identified as suitable for publication. After careful consideration, the editorial board unanimously approved the proposed articles for publication in various fields: Business studies, science and engineering, arts and humanities, social sciences, Islamic studies, law, and journalism.

All the articles of MIUS are research-based, reflecting the scientific, logical, and systematic results. The authors have significantly contributed to the concept, design, execution, and interpretation of their research papers. MIUS is a peer-reviewed journal, and articles are selected for publication based on the recommendations of two reviewers and the final approval from the Editorial Board.

MIUS is published biannually. We invite articles twice a year, but receiving articles from interested authors is a continuous process. So, we welcome all the authors to send their articles to the address of the Managing Editor at any time. The Editorial Board will make a short list of the available articles to send to two reviewers in their respective fields.

It is our immense pleasure to highlight our editor-in-chief's spontaneous cooperation and encouragement in producing a quality journal that enhances MIU's research standard. We are very grateful to the members of the Editorial Board who are extending their helping hands to publish this issue.

We are also thankful to our authors, reviewers, and proofreaders, who have contributed a lot to boosting the quality and standard of our journal. We are grateful to the personnel who have taken the time to print, format, and organize this journal efficiently.

We have attempted to produce an outstanding publication, but there may still be a chance of lapses and errors. We shall be highly pleased if the readers do not hesitate to report those, if any, at their earliest convenience.
